Manuscript title: Discrepancy Of the Law on Disaster Emergency In Indonesia:
In Search Of An Integrated Law

Abstract:

The Determination of Disaster Emergency Status is a critical factor in handling Covid-19 in Indonesia. It legally provides adequate access to the Government to reduce legal bureaucracy and facilitate access to expedite the handling of Covid-19 in times of emergency. However it has faced difficulties in its application as it has no explicit reference to existed emergency related disaster laws. This article investigates such discrepancy in terms of the meaning of emergency within the legal framework in Indonesia. It utilizes doctrinal method to explore six various related laws to disaster emergency and analyze their discrepancy which has adversely impact to Covid-19 handling management. The term disaster emergencies under six related laws to disaster has different legal ideas, posing difficulties in their execution, particularly the lack of standard rules, centralistic, and lack of enforcement power in the field.

Contribution: This paper significantly displays the normative issues of disaster emergency determination and its status in different six disaster related laws, and provide an alternative to mainstream and amend the Infectious Disease Outbreak Law as an integrated law for ensuring legal certainty, benefit, and fairness for the people in handling potential pandemic in Indonesia in years to come.
